

The first interior wood stain still has an absolutely unstained reputation!

Resene Colorwood was the first stain of its type in New Zealand, and is still the only one to have stood the test of time. Colorwood's 21 colours have proved their light-fastness and complete transparency. And it has many more virtues: controlled penetration and a medium slow evaporation rate that makes application virtually foolproof. Has Colorwood no sins to confess? Well — it is the cause of just a shade too much pride.
